House Committee on Federal and State Affairs

In the House Committee hearing, Senator Steffen, a representative of Convention of States Action, and four private citizens provided proponent testimony. Proponents generally indicated a convention of states is necessary to restore the balance of power between state and federal governments, to limit increasing debt, and to limit the term length of elected officials.

Senator Straub, a representative of the Coffey County Board of County Commissioners, and 11 private citizens provided written-only proponent testimony.

A representative of Kansas Campaign for Liberty, provided opponent testimony. The opponent generally indicated the U.S. Constitution already has adequate limitations that need to be enforced and a convention of states would not necessarily remain tied to a single issue and could result in further erosion of state authority.

Representative Houser and six private citizens provided written-only opponent testimony.

No neutral testimony was provided.
