

2012 Kansas Statutes

8-2,143. Commercial driver's license; surrender of license issued by another state; hazardous materials endorsement. When any person applies for a commercial driver's license, and has a commercial driver's license issued by another state, the person shall surrender the license issued by the prior state of domicile and complete the application form required by subsection (b) of K.S.A. 8-2,134, and amendments thereto, including all required information and certifications. If the applicant previously held and desires to retain a hazardous materials endorsement, and it has been more than two years since the applicant passed the written test for the endorsement, the applicant shall be required to take and pass the written test administered by this state for the hazardous materials endorsement.
